Overall Responsibility
Health Workers help student residents Be Well To Do Well using communications and other activities that promote healthy personal and community practices, including self-care, risk management, and appropriate use of health care services. Health Workers are not doctors, paramedics, or pharmacists and are not trained to provide medical triage, diagnosis, services or medications but are still a valuable resource to their units. Health Workers (HWs) act individually and as a HW team in their unit. They also collaborate and serve as a liaison with unit and Tang Center staff to minimize student health problems (e.g. alcohol and other drug use/abuse; stress; infectious disease; and mental, social and sexual health issues) and maximize student success and wellness. Health Workers are responsible for the activities below.

Community Health Education
- Health Tips – Write, copy and post in residential bathrooms weekly
- Use unit communications tools and resources effectively, e.g. bulletin boards, social media, email, and word of mouth.
- Community wide education activities – Plan and implement Be Well To Do Well Week each semester, maintain a UHS info outlet
- Consult and assist RAs or other Unit staff on their health-related programming (2-3x/semester)
- Tang Special Projects – 8 hours per academic year in miscellaneous Tang outreach and liaison activities.

Individual Health Promotion Advising, Resources and Referrals
- Be available (in person, by phone and online) to offer residents individual advising, resources (information, safer sex & first aid supplies) and referrals from a knowledgeable and non-judgemental peer.
- Follow-up with individual residents per request of UHS and community staff.

Liaison Activities
- Build effective working relationships with unit staff and leaders – attend meetings 1x a month and attend community activities 4x a month
- Exchange timely and accurate health-related information between Tang and your residential community

Other Requirements:
- Live-In the residential community during term of service
- Full participation in PH 97 - Health Promotion in a College Setting Field Work class - Tuesdays from 5-6:30pm
